REMEDY WITH CONGRESS.

Judge Bradley's Opinion in Oklahoma

vesterday, denying the application of Lone the confederated tribes of Kiowa, Apache and Comanche Indians, for an injunction to restrain the Secretary of the Interior, the commissioner of the general land office and the commissioner of Indian affairs from opening up for settlement about 2,000,000 acres of the land of the Indians, located in Oklahoma, Justice Bradley held that if the act of June 6, 1900, is violative of the treaty of 1868 the remedy rests with Congress, not the judiciary. He said that the right of the Indians to the reservation is a possessory one only; that the wrong, if any, threatened by the execution of the act of June 6, 1900, is a wrong to the tribe as a tribe, and that no individual suit cannot be maintained by members of the tribe as individuals.

Justice Bradley holds that these Indians are the pupils or wards of the nation; that the duty of providing for their maintenance, civilization and education, and of protecting and caring for them rests upon to its legislative or political branch.

The court further holds that the ques tion whether three-fourths of the adult male Indians signed the agreement, etc., was presented to Congress; that the ratification by Congress is necessarily a finding that the agreement was assented to by the that the agreement was assented to by the requisite number of Indians, and that there was no false or fraudulent representation or interpretation, and that this decision by Congress is conclusive upon the judicial tribunals. He further holds that an act of Congress and a treaty are, under the Constitution of the United States, upon an equal footing; that an act of Congress will repeal a prior inconsistent treaty and that force treaty stipulations, or to grant re-dress for wrongs inflicted by their breach.

As stated, counsel for the Indians gave notice of his intention to ask leave to prosecute a special appeal to the Court of Verdict Not Yet Confirmed. In regard to the refusal of the tax officer to furnish Clarence A. Miller with an assessment bill against property affected by the extension of Rhode Island avenue in Le Droit Park, Mr. A. B. Duvall, attorney for the District, has reported to the Commissioners that the verdict in the Rhode Island avenue extension case has not yet been finally confirmed. He says an appeal from the decree confirming the verdict was taken by several property owners to the Court of Appeals, which appeal has but re-cently been dismissed. A mandate from the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court will if any, threatened by the execution of the act of June 6, 1900, is a wrong to the tribe as a tribe, and that no individual member will suffer any injury which will not be shared in common by the other members. The decision declares that the
